photography

two photographers, one vision

Two Photographers, Emma Rothera and Steve Hanson had one vision...to create a photographic company that would work differently from the rest. In April of 2007 they pooled their talents to create your beautiful photography.

Thinking beyond the obvious, by successfully combining movement and light.

We interpret each individual landscape on it's own merit.
It's an important part of our photography to successfully combine the right amount of movement to the correct balance of light.

Light alters the way we see everything, it can create something extraordinary out of the ordinary... planning the light.

Getting to know the environment you are working in is paramount. You can plan the weather conditions upto a point, the direction of light, time of day and year. These factors alone will put you in the right place at the right time. However nature always has the last say, combining these elements successfully is what makes our landscape images stand out from the rest.

A revelation of light, land and coastline...

At your beautiful photography we believe you make your own luck and have to seize the opportunity.
This enables us to capture the right moment, with the right light, at the right time.

Expanding our field of thought and vision...achieving the end result

To have two photographers present on each individual commission enables us to exchange ideas, support each others work, share knowledge and work more closely with our clients to achieve end results more effectively.

“Emma and I trust each other implicitly, that’s why our partnership works. We have spent many hours together photographing landscapes, with the winter wind whipping at our backs. We walk, wait and even on occasion have had to run after the light.” sh

"Sometimes we shoot almost back to back and the difference in two images captured at the same moment in time, taken in different directions has blown us away. We have managed to capture things working together on commissions that would be impossible for a landscape photographer working on their own to achieve." er
